

Middle Childhood Development

Overview of Middle Childhood Development

Middle childhood, ages 6-12 doesn't get as much attention as early childhood and adolescence but these years are just as critical to growth and development. Training participants will receive information on the following topics: key areas of development, the impact of trauma on school-age children, learning differences, internet safety, bullying, suicide, and resilience. Please join us for 2.5 hours of training credit.

Training Objectives

By the end of this training, participants will:

- Understand basics of middle childhood development and age-appropriate expectations
- Understand impact of trauma during middle childhood
- Increase awareness of learning differences in middle childhood
